Epworth League Convention.

Lewiston District Association Meets with Norway Methodists.

The convention opened shortly before eleven o'clock, Wednesday morning, with a praise service led by E. H. Lander of Yarmouth. There were only a few delegates present, the greater number coming on the afternoon trains. Rev. Royal A. Rich, secretary, was at his desk. It was announced that the president, W. T. Kilgore, formerly of Mechanic Falls, was confined at his home in Kennebunk by a broken arm. The opening prayer was made by Rev. O. S. Pillsbury of Bethel.

Rev. B. F. Fickett of the entertaining church made a brief and pleasing speech of welcome. The response was by Mr. Lander who had charge of the singing at the convention.

Rev. Alexander Hamilton of Mechanic Falls presented a review of some editorials in Epworth Herald, last week. The idea advanced, discussed and approved is the establishment of a series of district institutes for instruction and spiritualization, make regular training schools of them. An anthem by a male quartet —Rev. Royal A. Rich, West Paris; Rev. Ernest Hooper, Rev. F. K. Beem, Chebeague; Rev. Abel W. Pottle, South Paris—was followed by a discussion of some Epworth League problems. Rev. Abel W. Pottle said that under the old methods of work the young people's society was not needed, and that there was a tendency to let the young people's meetings drift into an old people's meeting and kill the very purpose for which the societies were organized, Presiding elder Ladd of Lewiston wants more of the training which the League can give. Rev. D. B. Holt of Bath was very much impressed with the value of schools of instruction in work and in Methodist fatality and history. The cabinet (or board of officers) was instructed to arrange the program for the next convention so that a goodly proportion of the time should be devoted to institute work. The forenoon session closed with a love feast.

In the afternoon, Mr. Lander again took the chair, as in the absence of the president, that duty devolved upon him as first vice-president. Divine strength was asked by Rev. Bro. Hamilton.

The records of previous convention was read by the secretary and approved by the convention. Committees were appointed from the chair on the business of the convention.

Rev. D. B. Holt of Bath gave an address on the English Bible and how to study and use it. He gave a scholarly exposition of the origin of the Book of books, the original manuscripts, how they have come down to us and how translated into the English tongue. "Use the Bible regularly, habitually," said Mr. Holt, "persistent reading of the Word till it becomes the pleasantest of habits." He declared that the sermon is only a minor portion of the church service, that the reading of the unvarnished word of God is the most important part of the service. God's own word tells the message better than he or any of his brother ministers is humanly able to do. Learn about the Bible so as to read it intelligently. God puts no premium on laziness and gives no message hit or miss.

Carolina DeFabritiis from the New England Conservatory of Music sang "O, Divine Redeemer" by Gounod. Her rich, clear trained mezzo-soprano voice held the closest attention of her listeners.

A general discussion followed on subjects suggested by Mr. Holt's paper. Dr. Ladd believes in getting our own instruction of the Book, better not depend on any "private wire" or its equivalent for communications from the Almighty. Rev. A. Hamilton believes in reading Bible book by book. Rev. C. C. Whidden said don't read it; study it. Mrs. Martin of Bridgton, Mrs. Pottle of South Paris, Rev. Mr. Holt and Rev. C. C. Phelan gave brief remarks.

Dr. Ladd was called upon for "Echoes from State Convention," and gave a witty and lively account of it.

A general discussion of special undertakings and of the state of work was the last talk of the afternoon.

Music for the evening devotions was by South Paris Methodist church choir, Mr. Sessions giving a solo for the prayer response. The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Mr. Fickett, and prayer was made by Rev. A. S. Ladd. Rev. C. C. Phelan gave the address of the evening on "Enthusiasm."

There was also a little entertainment, with singing by Carolina DeFabritiis, who is visiting at a Methodist household; a quartet—Clara Connor, Mrs. Fickett, Ina Griffin, Alice Gammon—and by Hazel Bennett, Ella and Ollie Edgecomb; reciting by Frank Starbird, etc. A pleasant reception was given by the local League to the brethren and sisters from other places.

The convention continues through Thursday.

Sunrise prayer-meeting at 6 o'clock was well attended.

Forenoon session began at 9 o'clock. Reports from Leagues, officers and committees; election and other business. Address by Rev. William Wood of Berlin, N. H., on "The Important Characteristics of Methodist Polity." Address by Rev. William H. Barber of Gorham, N. H., on "The Fundamental Doctrines of Methodism." Address by Mrs. Helen A. Ladd of Lewiston on "Twentieth Century Opportunities for Young Women's Work." The addresses followed by discussion.

In the afternoon, a steamboat excursion on Lake Pennesseewassee.

At half past 7 the last session. Address by Presiding Elder Ladd on "The Forward Movement." Final business and closing exercises.

The delegates as they arrived were met at the depot by a committee who looked after their entertainment, and looked decorated them with a pretty ribbon badge bearing a blue-print picture of the church.

The delegates from Yarmouth were adorned with conspicuous badges of red ribbon.

The Norway churches of other denominations were invited to send fraternal representatives, and different members of them were present at the convention. Of course there were good numbers present from South Paris. The pastors, delegates, etc., coming from a distance who were in attendance during Wednesday are:

En Voyage.

Oh, the waves dash high,
Or they sleeping lie,
Calm and translucent 'neath the sky,
That high-arched, azure dome,
While far aloft the sea gulls fly
Like flecks of high-tossed foam.

And the wavelets dance,
At the sun's warm glance,
While the wind across the wild reef chants
Of ships that thither roam
And lay their shattered hulls, perchance,
Dismantled 'neath the foam.

With the ebb and flow
Sounds a murmur low
Of ships that sailed, long years ago,
And ne'er returned home.—
Whispers of long forgotten woe,
Echoes of ancient gloom.

O, the ships sail east
And the ships sail west,
And out upon Life's ocean's breast
My ship is speeding home,
Swift to that harbor, Eternal Rest,
No longer by tempests blown.

Legend of the Rainbow.

Could you go to the end of the rainbow
That spans the heavens bold,
Could you travel the distance, seeking,
You'd find there's hoard of gold.

Children list to the story
In innocent surprise,
And eagerly watch the colors
Athwart the troubled skies.

And the tiny feet grow weary,
'Neath cloud and sunny skies,
While the rainbow fades in gravest mist,
Ere they reach the glittering prize.

'Tis only a time-worn legend,
But musing alone, to-day,
I think of Life's bright rainbows
That vanish from sight away.

Our rainbow may be a castle,
With rubies and purest gold,
Or it may be some shrine of honor,
Or the lore that sages unfold,

Or yet, perchance, great glory
With loving friends and dear,
And we wake to find them vanished,
And we traverse Life's desert drear.

And some day, soon, or later,
Will our tattered banners fall,
And we bow the head, submissive
To that Will that is over all.

Yes, we are chasing some rainbow,
Seeking some hoard of gold,—
But our fond hopes fade in the distance,
E'en "as a tale that is told."

They fade in the glimmering distance,
As the rainbow colors die,
Leaving at last in the twilight
The wreck of a cloud-tossed sky.

More About Paris Library.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Will you please print the following about that library lot?

In reply to my communication in the ADVERTISER of June 28 I notice that the writer comments at some length on the distribution of population in the town of Paris on which he seems to be exceedingly well informed, and the ease with which the people in all parts of the town can reach the metropolis of the town, namely South Paris, either by team or rail, but the main points under controversy he touches not at all. Those are the few who will take books from the library outside the village and thereby be benefited and the justice and equity of compelling people in all parts of the town to help support said library and pay for lot as well and receive no benefit therefrom; also in having a town meeting called in the busiest season of the year when so few can attend to express their wishes. As before stated, few if any outside of the village and immediate vicinity will take books from the library most of the farmers having papers which is about all the reading they have time for, and there being libraries, either large or small, in all the other villages, and the fact that the books of this library will be free to them will not benefit unless they can take them out and read them which will be inconvenient for many to do.

Now a library I regard as a necessity, but a fine home for it is surely a luxury. So we are called upon to pay for a luxury as the library they have already and as I suppose properly housed. In regard to compelling the taxpayers of Paris to increase their taxes already large to pay for a luxury for South Paris people is surely an injustice, which if reversed would certainly cause lots of kicking on the part of South Paris people, as for instance if this library was to be situated on Paris Hill or at West Paris. Now gentlemen, doesn't the Golden Rule apply here or that old saying, "Live and let live?"

As to the fact that so large a proportion of the population of the town reside in South Paris village and near by, and so large a part of the wealth of the town is there also, that constitutes in my miud one of the best possible reasons why the people of South Paris should pay for the lot and care of library themselves and not beg the town to do so, as it shows by their number and wealth that they are amply able to do so without calling on the rest of the town to help them.

My figures in regard to increase in taxes, namely two per cent., were taken from the report of the library committee and were figured on a basis of tax of $20,000 assessed, so if a less amount was raised the percentage of increase would be larger, but, as before stated, it would add $1.25 to a $25 tax the first year, and $2.50 to a $50 tax, and 50c to a $25 tax and $1 to a $50 tax for each succeeding year, if the suggestions of the committee are carried out, and that as the years go by will figure up quite a respectable amount for a man to give with nothing to show in return except the knowledge that they have a fine library building at South Paris; so I think it ought to rest with the people there whether Mr. Howland's offer is accepted and if so South Paris should furnish the lot and care and equipment of library and not the town, as a large part of the town cannot possibly be benefited.

In closing I wish to thank the publishers of the ADVERTISER for their courtesy in allowing me the use of their columns to express my views on this matter, and although somewhat surprised that the reply to my first communication emanated from the editorial sanctum of the ADVERTISER when I of course supposed that only Paris people would be interested, yet I freely grant him the right to defend the people of South Paris if he sees fit, and express approbation of their desires. As I am not like the old woman who had always to have the last word, you and others may now have the floor and I will retire.

North Paris. E. E. FIELD.

Mr. Field, hardly has occasion to say that we are defending the people of South Paris. We live in an adjacent town which has for some years enjoyed the blessings of a free public library supported by taxation. We have watched the workings of that library, have seen how regularly many of our farmer citizens patronize it, even those that come from as long distances as any citizen of Paris need travel to reach South Paris village. Many of our subscribers live in Paris and we take an interest in their welfare. As an unprejudiced neighbor we gave some candid statements of interesting facts in the matter, and we trusted that they would be accepted in the same friendly spirit as given.

Norway is a town of not quite so large a population as Paris. By the census of 1900 we numbered 2,902 people, of whom 2,034, or 70 per cent. lived in Norway village. During the twelve months of that year 3,461 books were loaned from that library to our citizens, besides a few to outsiders. It was also used to fully an equal amount for purposes of reference to settle all manner of questions and controversies. We have many times seen people from all parts of the town "looking up" things at the library.

Of those 3,461 loaned books, the 2,034 inhabitants of Norway village took 1,853 or 9 books for each 10 village people; and the 868 rural inhabitants of the town took 1,608 books or 19 books for each 10 people living in Norway outside the village. And the people includes every human being from great-grandparents who have got past reading to babies who have not learned their A B Cs.

It will be seen that the library does reach the very class of people for whom it was intended, those to whom the daily papers, etc., are not convenient. We do not believe that any farmer in Paris would willingly admit that he or his townspeople on farms are any less willing to use library privileges than those of Norway. Last week, we showed that three-fifths of the farmers of Paris would be accommodated by a library at South Paris. If they be like those of Norway, they would get more from the library than anybody else, and we rather imagine that they are just the ones to see that this opportunity does not slip either them or their neighbors. Should library building and property come into the ownership of South Paris Village Corporation, those farmers would not be able to thus use the library.

We wish that Norway had a similar chance to house the town's library in a good building and get rid of paying rent.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Summer Institutions.

Fryeburg, Maine, June 27, 1901.

Where the Saco river leaves the White Mountains and meanders through the intervale, there is a wooded tract of land which in former days was the site of an Indian village. Now there is situated there an educational organization with various departments, resembling in miniature a university in form. The corporate name of the organization is the Maine Chautauqua Union, but the Chautauqua Assembly, which has been greatly modified in process of time, is only one of its various departments. In fact it is a summer settlement in surroundings of peculiar natural beauty and restfulness, devoted not merely to vacation pleasures, but also, and more distinctively, to mental re-invigoration. To this settlement has been given the name of "Fryeburg-on-the-Saco."

One of the departments is called the Fryeburg School of Methods. It is a summer school for teachers, lasting two weeks; this year from July 16 to July 30. By the Maine State Educational Department it is recognized as one of its official schools, but it differs from the others in having for its exclusive use a separate corps of instructors. It therefore does not parallel the work of the other schools, but supplements it. Besides, whereas the other schools vary in location from year to year, this school is permanently situated at Fryeburg. The courses of instruction are designed for common school teachers in all grades, including the high school. Of the teaching force Dr. Stetson, the State Superintendent of Maine, has written that it is "one of the strongest corps of instructors ever connected with one of our summer schools."

Another department is the Fryeburg School of Theology and the Church. Courses of lectures on Biblical, theological and practical subjects will be given by professors from Andover and Hartford, and various ministers. The session of this school is from July 30 to August 12.

A camp for boys and girls and adults through July is another department. It is designed especially for high and grammar school pupils who need to carry on their studies during the summer.

Another department is the Sunday School Institute, August 26 to August 31.

A fifth department is a Summer School of Music, for six weeks.

The remaining department is the Chautauqua Assembly, August 12-24. Through July and August there are evening lectures and concerts.

In order to meet expenses certain nominal charges are agreed upon. For the School of Methods there is an enrollment fee of two dollars. (To teachers of Maine enrollment is free). Except for special courses there is no other tuition charge. For the School of Theology five dollars will cover both the courses and the evening lectures and concerts during the session of the school. For other departments the fees vary in amount. The fact that the settlement is carried on in a spirit of co-operation makes it possible to bring the cost, both for instruction and and for living expenses, within the limits of narrow purses.

This settlement has the approval of such men as Rev. Francis E. Clark, President of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor in chief of the Outlook, New York, Professors Moore, Ryder, Hincks and Merriam, Rev. Smith Baker and Professor Taylor of the Chauncey Hall School, Boston, as is evidenced by their participation, this year.

There is need of an endowment to put the settlement in position to meet its opportunities; there is need of books for its library (and these, it is suggested, can be given in part by those who attend); but most of all there is need of a more general knowlegde of Fryeburg on the Saco and its work by those to whom it can be helpful.

General information can be had of Mr. James H. Dunne, Treasurer and General Manager.

When Horses Shall Have No Burdens

BY CLINTON ROSS.

Copyright, 1901, by Clinton Ross.

"Fact," said Jack, skillfully guiding his coach through a crowd of vehicles. "I then never could have imagined the sport of this thing." We were gliding swiftly now along the east drive, and then out on to the stretch of the boulevard. Several coaches passed, every one propelled in the new way to which, as I say, I now was accustomed.

The boulevard chanced to be crowded that afternoon. Once we nearly had a smash with a careless fellow who was plainly in the wrong. So the policeman thought, for he directed his machine to the other, quickly overtaking him, and the last we saw of our careless gentleman was the policeman leaping quickly from his own to the other wagon and grasping the offender by the collar. I remember an ambulance came rolling along, and as I saw the uniformed man guiding it I wondered what suffering or misery it signified. And then we were out of the town. At one place two horses, kept by some fancier as pets, stood sleek, well content, the old burdens banished from their lives, looking complacently at the horseless coach. I tell these things as they impressed me, as things will when really you may be absorbed with some important topic. That topic was my plot. It left me serious as I thought of it, of how false I should be did I run away with Mildred. And yet really there appeared no other way. I only could get that one chance.

A mail wagon went by.

"Is there a mail service so far up country as this?" I asked Jenkins—Jenkins, who believed now in a horseless world because it had been demonstrated.

"Oh, my dear fellow, to be sure you have been in Abyssinia so long! Owing to horseless wagons the postal service reaches from house to house. There is a country cab service, you know, too, enabling one to go absolutely in any direction."

"I should think it would affect the railroads," I said stupidly, for I still was thinking of Mildred.

"Well, it hasn't so much," said Jenkins. "The railroads still are the great distributers. But from every station they run lines of horseless trucks and cabs, so that on many of the lines you can buy tickets to your door."

So this dogmatical professor—for he has gained a chair—chattered on, giving me the information a man who had been so long away might require.

But I, as I said, did not listen, for I was thinking of Mildred, the dear little Mildred, whom my ten years' sleep had brought to my age. Yet that same blessed, oblivious ten years had entangled her with Smythe. I had returned to the world just too late, it seemed, unless we should dare, for in a week Mildred was to marry another unless I should prevent it, and Mildred was willing I should try.

And so we covered those Westchester roads, and so Jenkins talked dogmatically of horseless wagons, and now and then, I say, a horse would look out on the ingenious machines that had taken away his harder labors.

We knew we were followed.

"You see, the fun of the thing is that we are not wearing out flesh and blood," said Jenkins, pointing to the horse in the field.

"Oh, yes, of course," said I absently, still thinking of Mildred.

I think when I saw her, two hours later, she never had appeared more beautiful. My compunctions vanished when she whispered as we stood by ourselves:

"It's for you, Tom. If I be false to Jim Smythe, at least I shall make you happy. Duty begins and ends there."

I wanted to say a deal. But I couldn't when the whole room was outside the alcove. I only whispered for her to be on the veranda after dinner. How long that dinner seemed! How anxiety for our plan troubled! Did the Van Brules suspect? I looked at Van Brule pater, but he apparently didn't, and who could suspect all that was behind Mildred's demureness? But at last the endless courses ended. Nothing can be endless, it seems. And then Mildred was on the veranda. I told her man waited with a horseless cart at the end of the lane.

"I am ready, Tom," she said a minute after, returning with a wrap.

Yes, my cart was there, and then we were started, the groom behind, I at the helm. Yet we had not gone far before we knew we were followed.

"Thank heaven," said dear Mildred, "there are no horses to kill."

"Only a machine," said I, bending

Yes, my cart was there, and then we were started, the groom behind, I at the helm. Yet we had not gone far before we knew we were followed.

"Thank heaven," said dear Mildred, "there are no horses to kill."

"Only a machine," said I, bending to my duty. Mildred was mine. The cart might wear out, but I should not lose her now.

"There's a short cut, sir, if you take the first turn to the left," said Simpson, the groom, entering into the spirit of the adventure.

It was a little wooded lane into which we turned. Would they too? Mildred clung to me, and the moonshine showed us chasing there between wood and field—Simpson behind with erect head and folded arms. If the Sleepy Hollow schoolmaster could have come to life, how he would have run from that apparition—stranger than any headless horseman—of a horseless cart.

And still it is in this year, 1909, that fortune smiles on those that dare.

Soon we saw the lights of the little old church, for I had been careful to have the church opened.

"If we run away, Tom, we certainly must have it in a church," Mildred had said.

With beating hearts we drew up before this old church. Simpson jumped down to the cart's head.

"We've beaten 'em" he said with excitement.

Inside my young clergyman was waiting expectantly. A half dozen of my friends were there to give the occasion a certain formality. The little organ pealed out the march, and the little organist looked about, smiling excitedly on us.

At the altar Mildred and I met and that was said which I never shall regret.

But as the organ pealed out again we heard a great disturbance at the door. Van Brule pater entered aghast, yet only for a moment, and then, with the cleverness that turns defeat to victory, he said urbanely:

"Hum! I see I'm ten minutes too late, and I supposed I had the fastest light wagon in Westchester. Well, you've won fairly. Bless you, my children."

So we won, and we tooled back to Van Brule manor a happy family party, and Van Brule pater contented himself with saying: "At least this is the first elopement that has been made in a horseless cart. Tom, I believe that cart of yours is worth $1,500."

I looked back, for Simpson was driving it just behind. Then I looked at Mildred.

"Sir, I wouldn't take $15,000 for it. When it has passed its days of usefulness, it shall repose in my stable in a comfortable old age."

"No, Tom, we never can sell it," Mildred said. "It brought our happiness."

Now, Mildred said this, I am sure, but it was Jenkins' voice that interrupted—Jenkins who shook me.

"Oh, I say, Forsythe, it's 10 o'clock. You seem to have an old man's trick of going to sleep in your chair."

"Asleep," said I, looking at the club clock. "Yes, I have been asleep for ten years, I believe. Oh, do you know how the horseless carriage contest came out today?"

He began to express some views while I heard the clatter of the town—the beat of many hoofs that will end when horses no longer shall have burdens, when the changing world shall have exercised its ingenuity so that the hard tasks all shall be done by machinery, when the reincarnated Lochinvar no longer shall carry his lady across the saddlebow, but shall place her on the comfortable cushions of his motor driven cart, which shall be both vehicle and steed: when the good horse still shall be our companion in the exhilarating exercises, but when Mr. Bergh's good and famous society shall have outlived the day of half its usefulness.

Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. THINK IT OVER. There's a reason for those pains in your back and sides, for those dull, dragging aches, that listless, "keep-away-from-me" feeling. The kidneys are to blame. They get sick, can't do their work and the whole system feels the effect, just as a whole town feels the effect of a blockaded sewerage system.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Set matters right quickly and easily. They never fail, even in the most advanced stages of kidney disease.

Mrs. C. V. Pitts, of 21 Broad street, New London, Conn., whose husband conducts a grocery store says:

"Previous to using Doan's Kidney Pills in the winter of 1896 I was greatly inconvenienced by pain and lameness across the small of my back. The treatment cured that particular attack, and I made the facts known to the people of New London through our daily papers. It is over three years since my original statement was given to the public, and all I can add to it is that during the time specified I have found that a dose or two of Doan's Kidney Pills prevent recurrences."

WHEN tea was first introduced into Germany, 200 cups a day were recommended as beneficial to adults. This sounds absurd, but we do not realize how tea is weakened by exposure to the air. Probably the first tea used in Germany had lost most of its strength. Even to-day it takes a good many cups of tea that has been exposed long to the air to equal one cup of Chase & Sanborn's "Original Package" teas. Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease.

It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach.

It is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit.

The boys were very considerate the Fourth out of respect to a few ill ones and celebrated only just enough to let us know that it was the day to celebrate. Some that would have been noisy saved themselves for the dance in the evening and did it up brown.

Mr. Fanning of Providence, R. I., and his daughter have returned to the Lake House for the summer and the way he takes in the black bass of twelve inches in length and not over ten a day from Keoka lake, Oxford Co., is a caution. He says Waterford suits him after having tried many other places.

Mrs. Harrington and her sons, Jim and Wentworth, are here for their eighth season, and contemplate a canoe trip down Crooked river to Songo and back by way of Long lake. Mrs. Harrington enjoys the outings with her boys and enters into their pleasures with a zeal and apparent enjoyment as though she were a child again. Such mothers make good men of their sons.

The season of 1901 opens up well for Old Waterford and summer company or as some call it, summer trouble, is much in evidence and apparently in numbers ahead of previous years. Mr. and Mrs. Higginson returned early and occupy the Artemus Ward home and the well kept grounds show the care bestowed. Mr. and Mrs. E. One day last week just at twiligt, after a shower, the sky took on a very pretty and odd appearance. The red rift-like clouds, converging in one point and spreading out across the sky from horizon to horizon, gave an appearance much like a huge fan. It certainly was a pretty sight to any one who happened to notice it.

Albion Ricker, one of Turner's successful farmers and noted orchardists, was in town of late to meet his daughter and family from Chicago, who have a fine summer home near the old homestead. Mr. Ricker is 86 years old and is often seen with his double at Buckfield after feed, claiming the privilege of wheeling the sacks of grain to his wagon. He also may be seen at the twin cities marketing his produce. He says he set the pace for the men at hoeing, this season. Except for lameness he is remarkably well preserved. Always a great worker he can't think of laying off. His orchard is worth going miles to see, especially just before harvesting. He feels in his old age a commendable pride in the rearing of boys as well, mentioning one which he took at eight years of age, unable to read, and now he is enjoying a salary of $2,700 per year in New York. He says: "I like to speak of these things." And well he may be glad that success has attended his efforts.

No drunkeness, no noise or confusion for the Fourth here. The boys had a little sport, the night previous, in changing the occupation of the business firms by removing wares. But few people patronized railroads. The young people picnicked, some at North Pond, some at other retreats. Just a half century since, the Fourth of July was a very much of a rainy day, a great disappointment to many an expectant swain. The writer was on the island of Martha's Vineyard seeking pleasure on the shore of Vineyard Sound. Like the young people of today, a small company of us, we visited Prospect Hill, (not much of a hill compared with Maine's mountains) Roaring Brook, a small village where brick were manufactured. It was a most beautiful day there except one slight shower. It seems but a short time just to think of it, but it has been fifty years since that day—and what changes It is well that we cannot read the future. It is well for us, it is well for the young of to-day, for how many of the youth in the next fifty years can recall the events of last Thursday?

Don't forget that H. Price Webber and company are coming here July 24. The company is receiving very flattering press notices, but "Price" always had something good for his patrons.

Charles E. Waterman, editor of our esteemed contemporary, the Mechanic Falls Ledger, was in town, last Friday, and called on the ADVERTISER. Mr. Waterman took a trip to Florida, in April.

Edwin Dyer climbed the opera house tower, Saturday, and fixed the weather vane which had got stuck. Great crowds witnessed the feat of steeple-climbing, but nobody offered to go up and inspect his work.

Pretty quiet Fourth here. Less than the usual amount of noise on the night before. There was some bad mischief, especially the tearing of rails from the Lynn street bridge and throwing them in the brook.

John S. Sanborn, the senior partner of Sanborn & Chase, the great tea and coffee dealers of Boston, was in town, last week. Mr. Sanborn is the proprietor of the Elmwood Stock Farm at Lewiston Junction and has raised many fine horses there.

W. H. Martin of Greenwood called on us Friday and says there are an immense number of pond lilies on the first Mud pond, and that he has a boat in the pond to accommodate those who want to get them. Mr. Martin's health is not good though he feels that it is improving a little.

Geo. I. Cummings tells fabulous stories of how the bass bit on the Fourth. He caught over forty and saw a salmon that seemed to be three feet more or less. This salmon tried to catch and devour a three-fourth-pound bass. The big fish was seen several times but it could not be induced to bite a baited hook.

It was the evening of July 5th and a dozen young men were assembled at the Bridge street bridge watching the water, talking dog and enjoying the breeze. To the question: "How much would you take to jump into that water?" Lee M. Watson made a ready response that "I'll do it for two and a half." Two dollars and fifty cents was quickly raised and then he wouldn't jump. But the "boys" have made him sorry that he spoke.

Monday morning, when bookkeeper George A. Brooks opened the front door at the central office of C. B. Cummings & Sons', he found a fire burning in the middle of the floor. He rushed to the faucet and put out the blaze with several pails of water. The fire had started in the cellar, at the crossing of two 6x8 timbers, burned off the timbers and made in the floor a triangular hole about two feet across. It was undoubtedly caused by imperfect insulation of electric light wires. A narrow escape from a big fire.

Letter to Wm. A. Bicknell.

Norway, Me.

Dear Sir: Porterhouse, so much; neck, so much; all the way between.

Just so with paint. Devoe lead and zinc is the porterhouse. Nobody wants the neck; the between, some say, is good enough for them.

But Devoe costs less, not more, than between. Lead and oil is between; it is the old-fashion paint. But zinc has come in. Zinc toughens white lead. Devoe lead and zinc is the paint.

If you paint in three years, you do it for looks. Devoe does not wear out in three years.

Yours truly,
7 F. W. DEVOE & Co.

P. S.—F. P. Stone sells our paint in your section.

Everett Staples of Oxford is the receiving clerk at the Grand Trunk, Berlin, N. H. He commenced work, last week.

Tales of Old Turley by Max Adeler, which will appear in early numbers of The Saturday Evening Post, are wonderfully droll stories of the quaint characters in an old-fashioned country town before the war.

Dr. F. E. Wheeler, formerly of West Paris, who graduated from the Maine Medical School, has received an appointment as house surgeon and physician in the Providence, Rhode Island, State hospital, and commences his services, Aug. 1st.

Observations.

A fact that is being realized more and more, every year, is that the forests and streams of Maine and northern New Hampshire are rapidly gaining in favor as the out of door hospital for the invalids, the Mecca of the lovers of nature, and the paradise of the sportsman.

The dweller in the cities by the sea may find a day's recreation at the ocean's side where he is even then almost in a city with the ocean alone to remind him that he has escaped business cares, but he longs for a change where care may be forgotten in the sights and sounds of lake, forest and stream, in order that his system may be toned up and invigorated by the mountain air and all the luxuries of the country which the tin can afford only in an imaginary sense.

Scarcely more than the route may be obtained from the guide books, and the traveling part of it is the hardest of all, and the enjoyment is found only in the stops, instead of a dusty railway car, and for the benefit of any who wish to take an outing there can be no better, no more picturesque and none more enjoyable than to make Portland the objective starting point. A ride of two hours on the Grand Trunk brings you to Norway, Me., which may be reckoned as one with South Paris, and here you find beautiful villages where you are both in the country and city, and at Norway you can take the steamer to and over Norway lake where one may camp in the pines on its shores, or find accommodations in the Beal's and Elm Houses, or take the electrics for the Andrews House at South Paris, all of them good and the ideal home for the traveler.

The lake abounds in trout and black bass, and the sport is always good, while away in the distance may be seen the White Mountains, and nearer still the mountains and valleys of Oxford county which delight the eye until one imagines themselves in fairyland. If cares to linger, there is no better sport, no more varied scenery, and no place where a stay may be made at so little expense, and you will be looked on as the guests of the entire community.

Should you care to go on, a ride on the Grand Trunk brings you to Bethel where you may take the Lake stage for Lakeside, N. H., through the wild Grafton Notch where the gentlemanly drivers will be pleased to point out and explain everything from the "stone jail" to "Speckled Mountain," the second highest point of land in the old Pine Tree State.

An excellent dinner at Poplar Hotel, just before entering the Notch, and you are prepared to enjoy the wild, weird and grand scenery and before you have ceased to talk about it, you have reached Upton and are looking down on Lake Umbagog, the lower of the Rangeley chain and the outlet of the Magalloway as well as the source of the Androscoggin, with the hills of Maine and the mountains of northern New Hampshire making a beautiful landscape, while the flashing waters of Umbagog cause a marine and landscape blended in one.

Down the hill and you are at the Lakeside House, controlled by the Maine and New Hampshire Hotel Association who own 1100 acres of land on the shore of the lake and next season will build a large hotel near the "Carry." The association, of which Fred N. Saunders of Lewiston is treasurer and manager, are now engaged in building five camps, each on a point of land extending into the lake, and later on all will be connected by telephone with the large hotel. The first parties to occupy either camp will have the privilege of naming it, their names as well as the name of the camp to be placed on it and remain there.

They also control the passenger traffic of the lake. On reaching the Lakeside House your troubles are at an end, as mine host Saunders assumes all responsibility and can furnish boats, guides and all needful requisites as well as tell you when the trout, bass and pickerel may be found at home, as well as the haunts of the deer, for you are now in a country abounding in game, and as the pickerel are diminishing in numbers the trout fishing has improved until it has become a cond to none.

The steamer is taken from here to Errol dam and to the Brown farm up the Magalloway, as well as to the "carry" at Sunday Cove.

Five miles across the carry and you may take the steamer for a ride on the remainder of the Ranegely chain, or if you wish to try the trout and game of the Magalloway region, a carriage ride of five miles from Brown Farm brings you to Flint's, who in spite of his name has a warm heart and knows all the lakes and streams of that section, while the by-paths of the wilderness are as familiar to him as the columns of your newspaper are to you.

Two miles above his hotel and you are at the head of Azicohos falls, at the landing of the steamer Bob Cat, owned by the Parmachenee Club, which makes daily trips to and from Camp in the Meadows, 17 miles above, and from here you may be taken to Parmechenee and the lakes above. There is an established post office at Camp in the Meadows and at Camp Caribou, 15 miles farther on, with a daily mail at each.

Mine host, Sanford Yates at the Meadows will furnish you with boats and all the nescessaries even to new milk as a cow is kept there and it is an enjoyable stopping place with plenty of fly fishing and hunting.

When you begin to think of returning and bidding adieu to your Lakeside friends, you reach Errol. You will later on find that you may be carried in nine passenger automobiles from there to Colebrook, N. H., through the famed Dixville Notch, where you will be lost only in wonder at the works of Nature and the art of Man, as some $8,000.00 is being expended on the road through the Notch, when there will be an even grade of 20 per cent., and you will ride in comfort, passing The Balsams, and at Colebrook find the Monadnoc and Colebrook houses to be first-class, and you can then take the Mountain Divison of the Maine Central past Fabyan's and Crawford's, through the Crawford Notch of the White Mountains, which is too well known to need description, and you will find your trip to have been crowded with pleasure from one end to the other, and you will look back with kindly feelings for the friends with whom you stopped or traveled, who were always ready to furnish you guides at any point, or to impart all the information you desired.

In our wanderings as a tramp we were present at the ball games and races at Norway on the Fourth and could not help but notice the absence of anything pertaining to rowdyism, and we think it the most orderly gathering we ever saw, and now we will leave South Paris and Norway with a higher regard than ever.

We have always had a warm spot in our heart for those two places as we have found beside their natural beauty a kindly people, who not only won our respect, but our highest regard, and we now find that they are not only on their good behavior in everyday life but they seemed to make an extra effort in that direction on state occasions, and the law-abiding stranger who comes among them need never have any fear of being obliged to fight his way out.

While we leave the report to the abler pen of Mr. Clark, we will only say that Barbara Fritchie was absent from the grounds, as she was when Stonewall Jackson marched through Fredricksburg, but barber Fletcher was there and although he won the first heat, yet Jim Pledge—d to win and captured the race, showing that there is no use in putting a barber pole up against a meat market, as the butcher will do the slaughtering as the barber waits his turn and comes in "next" on the home stretch, while

Jim's horse in front of him,
Horses in rear of him,
Horses surrounding him,
Trotted and thundered;
His not to let him break,
Trying the rest to shake
And the fat purse to take,
While the crowd wondered.

W. C. SMITH.

These are perplexing days. The men are wearing shirt waists after the fashion of the ladies. The women and girls are rolling their hair and going bareheaded and with umbrellas after the manner of Chinese, Japanese and other ladies of the "far East." Some men and more boys get in between high buildings to "take a drink" and imagine themselves hid after the way of the ostrich, who gets his head under his wing when afraid and thinks no one can see him. The ostrich also swallows anything he can get down his throat.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Ernest Nason, mail contractor, commenced his services, July 1st, Fon Charles as driver. He has a fine coach which he purchased in Massachusetts. It is not modern style but it is really a fine coach, strongly built. I should judge it would never wear out. It is called the Tallyho, just such as were used in my boyhood days. July 1st, at the usual mail hour, it came whirling through air like a whirlwind or something else, but it did make a fine, imposing appearance, with Ernest and Fon seated side by side. They seemed to be so happy and cheerful. Well I was invited to ride and gladly accepted. The air was clear and bracing and the Tallyho run so easy I almost wondered where I was.

Grover-Gammon.

At the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Georgia Parker, Lovell, Sunday afternoon, June 30th, occurred the marriage of Stephen W. Gammon of Cape Elizabeth and Mrs. Dora C. Grover of Sweden. Rev. J. W. Grindell, pastor of the Christian church at Lovell Center, officiated at the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The house was beautifully decorated with plants, flowers and evergreen. To the strains of the wedding march the happy couple entered the parlor led by the usher, Marshall F. Charles, and flower girl, Nora E. Grover, and took their places under an arch of evergreen and roses.

The bride was attired in a gown of light tan ladies' cloth, with white satin and pearl trimmings, carrying a bouquet of bridal roses and wearing a crown of heliotrope.

After the wedding an hour was spent in receiving congratulations. Ice cream and cake, strawberry punch and lemonade were served. They received some very pretty presents. They departed for a short honeymoon. After July 25th they will be at home to friends at the residence of the bride at Sweden, for a short time, after which they will make their home at Cape Elizabeth. G. B.

Knowledge.

However plain and simple Christianity is, nothing is so important as knowledge. It is the highest achievement in the Christian experience to know, and it is the most blessed feature of our religion that we can know. —Rev. J. M. Cromer, Lutheran, Kansas City.

Pre-eminence of Jesus.

Men are provincial. They continually seek their own. Their horizons are contracted, their sympathies narrow, their aims selfish. But Jesus is pre-eminent among all in sympathy. Every class and condition of men find room in his capacious heart.—Rev. William A. Brown, Methodist, St. Louis.

Christian of the Future.

The Christian of the future will be a man of the world, loving the world and all its great enterprises that make for human welfare, taking hold of the social conditions that now exist, not with the wisdom of bygone centuries, but the scientific enlightenment of today to inaugurate and sustain slow changes for the betterment of humanity. And in this work, always in harmony with the natural evolution of society, it will be found that the greatest possible liberty for the individual and the greatest possible knowledge will most happily and most rapidly promote the good.—Rev. Dr. Utter, Universalist, Denver.

The Use of Sundays.

The prime cause of this country's superiority must be found in the character of its people, but a secondary cause, and that a most powerful one, is to be found in this institution of a day of rest. To the laboring man a larger proportion of the day must be given to the recreation of his physical nature than is necessary for the man of leisure. We should not be censorious if the overwearied shopkeeper and artisan use their liberty and take their families out into the country to breathe the fresh air of heaven. I believe in all the uplifting influence of nature, in the enlarging power of knowledge, in the refining influence of art, in the soothing charm of music. I believe if these things are brought into touch with men and women they will quicken their souls and create a feeling of aspiration in them. So, therefore, I believe in open picture galleries and museums and libraries and plenty of music on Sunday and the largest facilities for getting men away from the grime and squalor and the commonness of their daily habitations to the green parks and open fields.—Rev. A. Lazenby, Unitarian, Chicago.

EAST HIRAM.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Flint are visited by their friend, Kate Pratt of Haverhill.

Mrs. Annie B. Sargent is caring for Mrs. J. B. Pike of Wadsworth Mansion, Hiram.

Will Mayo and Harry Hubbard of Fryeburg were calling on friends here, recently.

Prof. N. E. Rankin of Gray's Businesa College, Lewiston, and family are spending their vacation at N. R. Flint's.

The work of repairing the interior of the M. E. church has been begun by the workmen from the Johnston, Bailey Co., Portland.

Prof. Walter Flint of the University of Maine, Orono, his son Ralph and daughter Eleanor, were guests of his uncle, N. R. Flint, recently.

Edgar L. Flint and family are visited by their daughters, Mrs. Charles Winter and Mrs. Geo. Clough of Boston, also by Mrs. E. L. Flint, jr., of Bridgton.

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Flint with Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Burnell of West Baldwin passed their thirty-sixth wedding anniversary very pleasantly at the home of Mr. Burnell near West Baldwin.

The remains of Mrs. Jane Evans, wife of Ephraim K. Baston of Boston, were brought here and funeral services were held in the Congregational church conducted by Rev. J. G. W. Herold. Mrs. Baston formerly lived in Hiram and was a member of the Congregational church. She was laid to rest with her oldest daughter, Grace Lillian, who died several years ago. Mrs. Baston leaves a husband, two daughters, a son, two brothers and two sisters.

Killed On the Railroad.

Friday evening, June28 as W. H. Clemons of East Hiram village was returning from West Baldwin, he was caught on the crossing just east of Bridgton Junction by the westward-bound Maine Central train, and hurled 105 feet, landing him on a large rock, breaking his leg, hip, ribs, jaw and head. He lived but a few minutes. The carriage was demolished and the horse had to be killed.

The train was stopped as soon as possible after the accident, and crew and passengers rushed to the relief of the victim. Medical aid was close at hand but it was no use. The body was taken to Hiram on the train.

No blame attaches to the engineer as the whistle was clearly sounded in accordance with orders before the crossing was reached. The victim must have been mentally preoccupied as he failed to heed the warning signal.

The scene of the accident is in the edge of Baldwin below the junction and is one of the most dangerous crossings on the entire line of the road. The highway at this point makes a sharp curve and it is difficult for one driving upon the road to observe the train until they are upon the track. Mr. Clemons had just been to carry one of his relatives home and was returning to Hiram.

He was the eldest son of the late Sudrick and Lucy Clemons and great grandson of John Clemons, one of the early settlers of Hiram. He was 68 years and 13 days old. He leaves a widow in very feeble health, two daughters, two sons, one brother and one sister; and it is notable that more than one-tenth of Hiram's population were related to him. He was an intelligent gentleman of pure life, of genial, cheerful disposition. He will be sadly missed in his wide circle of friends and in his business. For many years the town has not had a citizen who excelled deceased in mechanical skill; and there was seldom a case of construction or repairs too intricate for his ingenuity. He also worked readily as a plumber, painter, carpenter, brick and stone mason and blacksmith. Hence he was a handy minute-man, always ready to be useful. He died, as he had lived, without an enemy, and his stricken family has the deep sympathy of the entire community.

Cure for Cholera Infantum--Never Known to Fail.

During last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days the child had fully recovered. The child is now vigorous and healthy. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail.—MRS. CURTIS BAKER, Bookwalter, Ohio. For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Norway; F. A. Poland Camp Grounds.

Two terrific thunder showers passed over East Poland on the afternoon of July 2d. With one there were large hailstones. There are seven families here at this time, and quite a number coming, the last of the week. Our groceries can only be obtained by carrying them one-half mile, which is not very convenient for most of the families, as there are only two families that do not consist entirely of women and children.

There is one woman here who is 79 years old. She often goes to the store for her own groceries, does her own housework, cuts and makes her own dresses and can saw wood if necessary.

The weather is delightful in the grove. Any one seeking rest and quiet can find them here, even the mosquito ceases to annoy when the mosquito smoke is started. The glorious Fourth passed very quietly with a small display of fireworks. There are eleven families here and more arrivals expected each day. The grove is one half mile from the G. T. Ry. depot, Empire Road, the same from P. & R. F. Ry. depot, Elmwood Farm.

There is a grocery store at Empire Road, Bailey Bros., proprietors. They bring groceries to the families stopping on the camp ground which is very convenient.

Dana Dunn brings milk to the cottages each day.

Good butter, fresh eggs, strawberries and green peas can be bought at reasonable prices and are brought to the door.

This grove is a real children's paradise, they roam where they please and nothing harms them.

The recently opened Boston Elevated Railway, a subject of vital interest to the people of that city and its far reaching suburbs, is fully described by its chief engineer, Mr. George A. Kimball, in the July number of the New England Magazine. He gives a history of the changes in public street transportation since the days of the early omnibus lines.

OXFORD.

116 assembled in the M. E. church to listen to a patriotic sermon, by Rev. Arthur Callaghan, Sunday, June 30. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and draped in national colors. The audience was much pleased with the exercises.

The members of Oxford High School presented the drama A Limb o' the Law, to a full house, Friday night, the 28th. The parts were all well taken and reflect great praise on the actors. The play would have done credit to much older and experienced players.

Three Races Inside 2.32.

Races on the Fair Grounds, July 4.--West Paris Won the Base Ball Tournament.

Fifteen hundred people gathered at the fair grounds between Norway and South Paris. Fourteen hundred and ninety-nine of them ate peanuts, and the fifteen hundredth one would have done so, but he didn't have any teeth. The inspiration for the occasion was drawn from ginger ale bottles and a lemonade barrel. The weather was warm, but the sky was overcast, and neither parasol nor umbrella was needed.

Base Ball Games.

The base ball tournament proved interesting. There were three good warm games without an earned run in either of them. Carroll G. Curtis stood behind the pitchers and attended to the metaphysics of the game. Nobody made a single serious kick on any of his decisions. The games were all marked by gentlemanliness on the part of players and spectators.

First game was West Paris v. Mechanic Falls and the up-river boys took their outs at the start. Rob Shaw was in the box for them as aggravatingly smiling and deliberate as ever, but the good right arm of him hardly seemed to have its old-time vigor. They didn't hit his delivery and he fielded the position well; still those that knew his pitching could see that he was not in practice. But he is still the same old Rob Shaw who can win games by wearing out the patience of opponents. The down-river boys brought Lufkin to attend to the twirling, but somehow the big awkward fellow didn't seem to prove such a wonder as his reputation would seem to indicate. The feature of the game was Bowker's grandstand catch of a long foul off Lowell's bat in the ninth inning. Score:

Following that a game was in order between the Lewiston Volunteer, Jrs., and the Oxford nines. The Oxfords took on Wilson and the Volunteers had Lowell take a place on their bench. A chap about as big as a pint of that Androscoggin county mixture which isn't cider, and is sometimes used to help along a fourth of July pitched for the city nine. Oxfords brought the well known Bridgton Academy battery, G. C. Hamlin of Bartlett, N. H., and A. McDaniel of Kezar Falls. That battery was victorious in 11 out of 12 Academy games, this last spring, the one lost game going to Bates College. They are good players in position and good hitters at the bat. They are only boys—boys in their teens, but the work they did would shame some league pitchers. They played ball with their heads, and good heads those were. Hamlin is a serious problem to the batsman that faces him. He can get in more positions than a negro preacher; but his favorite throw in an emergency seems to be a swift ball thrown while resting on one knee, and which suddenly rises before it reaches the batter. The Volunteers were clearly outclassed by their opponents. Score of the game:

After dinner, the Oxford and West Paris teams came together for the big money of the day. It was a right good pull till the eighth, when the strain began to tell on the boy who was pitching for the team from the woolen-mill town. In the middle of that inning he also had the misfortune to get his pitching hand disabled by a hot liner knocking the little finger out of commission. Rob Shaw is older and had more endurance. Three games and not a dull moment in either of them. And the West Paris boys went home happy.

The Horse Races.

The 'forty-five class was trotted in the unusual time of 2.31¼. Four good even heats were trotted. They worked hard for the shares in that hundred-dollar purse and spectators gave them hearty applause. They trotted too fast at first and each heat was slower than the preceding one. The figures are:

Helen b. m., Jas. Pledge	2	1	1
Leslie b. g., L. E. Newell	1	4	2
Speculation bk. g., G. H. Jones	5	3	3
Alf Wilkes bk. s., P. V. Everett	4	2	5
Hope Wilkes b. m., F. E. Buck	3	5	4
Gray Prince g. g., Arthur Jack	dis

Time—2.31¼, 2.36½, 2.37, 2.40¼.

The 'twenty-seven class was taken in straight heats, the winner never being headed, but being pushed hard enough to make the contest interesting. Result in this race for a $125.00 purse:

Edgemark jr., B. F. Delano	1	1	1
Bump ch. g., F. B. Fogg	2	2	2
Joker M., b. g., J. L. Millett	3	3	3
Charles M., bk. g., H. G. Fletcher	4	4	4

Time—2.26¾, 2.27½, 2.32½.

The last race was the 'twenty-one class for a purse of $150.00 and it was slow for the class and the horses. Three heats were all that were needed:

Janet b. m., R. L. Cummings	1	1	1
Kite br. g., R. O. Jordan	2	2	2
Echoliene b. m., Arthur Jack	3	3	3
Silk Knot b. g., E. L. Pike	dis

Time—2.28¾, 2.30, 2.30.

The officers of the track were as follows:

Starter—E. M. Thayer.
Judges—W. H. Kilgore, A. S. Pitts, C. F. Ayers.
Clerk—William O. Frothingham.
Timers—E. E. Andrews, J. B. Robinson, Charles Crosby.

The other day, as contractor Charles H. Adams was working on the changes in Dr. F. N. Barker's house, a small boy came along and in a very dignified manner inquired if Mr. Adams had any old boards to spare. "Well, maybe," was the answer, "what do you want?" "Thought I'd like to build a camp," said the boy. "You see, I've got a padlock and key, and I'd like to have a camp, so I could lock it up."

Paper First Made from Wood.

The making of paper from wood has become a great industry. It has revolutionized the whole newspaper business and has built up cities and large manufacturing villages and is one of the great manufacturing interests of to-day.

Without doubt the first paper made from wood in the United States was made in Norway, in an old paper mill at Steep Falls. It was made by a German, Herr Pagenstecker, by the Voelter Patent, back somewhere in the fifties.

If anyone knows more about this it would be pleased to publish it in the ADVERTISER.

Mrs. George Cummings entertained the Barton Club at Goat Island on Monday. The day was perfect and the dinner fine and after that was discussed in repletion, toasts followed with Mrs. Will Jones as toastmistress. If the ladies have not heretofore shone as at dinner speakers it is due, no doubt, to the fact that they have had little practice. The company was increased in the afternoon and all the guests were under the spell of Pennesseewassee's charms. A most delightful day was spent, the only regret being that some of the members were unable to be present and enjoy the generous hospitality extended.

Monday morning, Oscar W. Needham was groaning because he had contracted to saw three cords of wood during the present week, and he didn't like to work so hard when the weather was hot. Monday noon, he informed us that he had it all sawed. We thought a little neighborly interest was right and proper and proposed to take a look at the fruits of his labor. So we politely inquired where he sawed it, and were met by the unfeeling response: "On the sawhorse." If somebody will bring us a photograph of friend Needham standing beside three cords of wood which he has sawed by his own strength we will have a cut made from it and print it in the paper.

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Bradbury, who are entertaining Don C. Seitz of the New York World, this week, invited his Norway friends, who knew him when a boy and went to school here, and whose father run a paper in Norway, to take a trip in the steamer, Pennesseewassee, Tuesday evening. The cool breezes of the lake were delightful after the heat of the day. The party called on E. A. Danforth's and C. L. Hathaway's cottages and were greeted by old friends. They were further entertained (that is the entertainment was not especially for their benefit) by singing by the Bohemian quartet of Lewiston who are staying with G. W. Horne's cottage, and of which Mr. Horne is a member; also by fireworks on Base island.
